

CLTC

Center for Long-Term
Cybersecurity

UC Berkeley

Center for Long-Term Cybersecurity

University of California, Berkeley

102 South Hall #4600

Berkeley, CA 94720

<https://cltc.berkeley.edu>

Are you a graduate student working on or interested in exploring new imaginaries for the futures of cybersecurity and/or AI security? Do you work in Indigenous Studies, African American Studies, Anthropology, STS, Gender and Women's Studies, or other fields not often represented in cybersecurity or AI, and have a perspective on how the future of digital security could or should be reimagined to be more inclusive of diverse perspectives?

The UC Berkeley Center for Long-Term Cybersecurity is launching a new project to explore alternative digital futures, and wants to hear from you.

Please send a few sentences to cltc@berkeley.edu by January 10th to tell us about yourself and a possible project you would be interested in, and we will be in touch. Outputs of projects are flexible and could include a blog post, event, academic paper, poem or art piece, policy brief, app, etc. The timeline for project work and completion is Spring and/or Summer 2022.

Thank you for your interest.